Charles G. Dawes Notified at Evanston Last Night

JEFFRIES SPEAKER

Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 20 — Three issues, "the fundamental principles of our constitution," the League of Nations and the World Court were the principal subjects in the address of acceptance by General Charles G. Dawes of the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

In discussing the constitution, General Dawes attacked the La-Fol-lette movement, socialism and what he called "radicalism," in the LaFollette movement and in one section of the Democratic party. He termed the LaFollette movement the chief opponent of the Republican party.

He prefaced the address with figures on economy in public expense effected by the Republican administration.

"This", said Mr. Dawes, "is a campaign of brass-tacks—not bombast.

"This administration reduced the cost of governmental operation, and it was not by accident."

By this saving, he said, "approximately six million dollars per day less, for national purposes, will be collected in 1925 from taxpayers, than for the fiscal year of 1921."

In the last pre-budget year after debt payments federal expenditures were 59 per cent and those of cities, states and towns 41 per cent, while in 1923, he said, the federal government took 41 per cent of the taxes compared with 72 per cent by the other three.

"The Federal Government," he added, "is headed in the right direction, and most of the states, cities and towns in the wrong direction."

Mr. Dawes said President Coolidge was "uninfluenced by motives of political expediency."

The Republican party, he said, stands firmly on the constitution.

"Opposed to it," he said, "though the result may be to deadlock the presidency and make Brynnism succeed the Coolidge policy, is a movement of untried and dangerous radicalism." He said this movement had a platform drawn by one man, designed to soften "apprehension as to what the movement really means."

"A man is known by the company he keeps", said Mr. Dawes, and quoted from Associated Press dispatches concerning the Cleveland convention, he read a statement that "The Socialist Party formally enrolled under the LaFollette banner," and another quoting Eugene V. Debs as thinking it "wise for our party to make no nominations" and "to keep the red flag flying."

"Robert M. LaFollette, leading the army of extreme radicalism, has a platform demanding public ownership of railroads and attacking our courts.

"Our nation is asked to follow an attack upon them (our principles) massed behind an aggressive personality, a heterogenous collection of those opposing the existing order of things, the greatest section of which, the socialists, flies the red flag: and into what? Into reopening of war upon those fundamental principles of human liberty and inalienable rights of men which are given in this country safe opportunity to the humblest."

Mr. Dawes said the League of Nations was not approved by the people of the United States because it did not make clear to their minds that it did not encroach on the sovereignity of the United States.

The Democratic platform declaration on the League, he characterized as "an invitation to again enter that fog of debate in a public referendum."

"In the propositions of President Coolidge in connection with the World Court, there is safeguarded the sovereignity of the

FLIERS EXPECT TO LEAVE TODAY

Hope to Have Damages to Planes Repaired—May Not Make the Long Jump.

Associated Press

REYJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 20—American around the world fliers had all preparations made today to resume their flight but unfavorable weather conditions again forced them to abandon their plans. A heavy gale was blowing. Later, it was decided that the American fliers and Lieut. Locatelli, Italian aviator who will accompany them to North America, will take off at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 20—Lieut. Lowell E. Smith, commander of the American army world flight, announced he hoped to hop off on the Greenland leg of the flight today.

It is expected that repairs to the two planes, which were damaged in an attempt to start for Fredericksdal yesterday, will require only two hours when the cruiser Richmond arrives with the spare parts.

If there is any other delay owing to the weather and if the ice conditions become better at Angmagsalik, the fliers may decide to make that landing point in Greenland, as originally intended, instead of attempting the longer jump to Fredericksdal.

FAIR WILL HAVE POLITICAL DAYS

These are the two new feature days that will be incorporated in the great division fair which opens Monday, September 22 at Chilowee park.

The official organizations of both the democratic and republican parties in Knox county have been yoked up with the big plan to have great impartial political demonstrations for two days at the fair.

Both days will be featured by militant party parades through Gay street. An effort is being made to draw the attention of the national campaign organizations of both great parties to this unusual feature of the 1924 fair.

The place has been repainted on the interior and at the exterior of the entrance. A lunch stand at which Coney Island and other sandwiches, drinks, cigars, are sold is placed on both sides of the room near the entrance. Zaharias and Calmes, the firm which also owns the Dixieland, intends to close out the latter place.

NOTED VISITORS CALL ON COOLIDGE

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 20—President Coolidge shared his vacation today with Thomas Edison, Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone and the latter's son, Russell.

For an hour the distinguished party stopped at the home of John Coolidge, father of the President, visiting with the family on the front porch, inspecting the grounds and town and good-humoredly posing for pictures. They were also on vacation, driving through on route to Montreal, Canada.

Calling principally to pay their respects, the visitors gave little time during the stop for a discussion of politics or business but each assured the president of his support and predicted success for Mr. Coolidge in the election. All lauded the present administration and gave enthusiastic reports on business conditions as well as on political affairs in brief interviews. The party enrolled in the "home town Coolidge club" at Ludlow, where they stayed last night and each wore the club button on his lapel.

The president, hearing of their approach, went up to the sugar lot on the farm early this morning and brought down a sap bucket, made for and used by his great-great grandfather, an original settler of Plymouth, which he presented to Mr. Ford.

IMPROVEMENT LABOR SHOWN SAYS BUREAU

Geneva Bureau Reports Satisfactory Conditions.

LABOR EVOLUTION

Compusory Labor Abolished, Report Declares—Study of the Strike Settlement.

GENEVA, Aug. 20— The development of industrial conditions in Soviet Russia is dealt with in a publication just issued by the International Labor Office. The volume brings out the fundamental differences between the present system and the regime which existed before 1921, the differences being the result of the process of transformation going on in Russia.

After taking up the functions of the Commissariat of Labor, chapters are devoted to wage policy, both before and after the establishment of the new economic policy, to an exposition of collective agreements, methods for the settlement of disputes, the regulation of the labor market, social insurance and factory inspection.

The general conclusions drawn from the report are that important modifications have taken place not only in labor conditions but in the material position of the working class in Russia. Compulsory labor has been practically abolished. The engagement and dismissal of workers has been declared free, the conditions of labor are determined by free agreement between the parties, and the value of work is determined by the laws of supply and demand. That greater liberty has come to Russia, declares the authors is shown by the fact that the central power confines itself to fixing a minimum wage, leaving to the parties concerned the duty of determining the actual remuneration of labor by collective agreements.

Despite the changes which have taken place, however, in the general policy of the Soviet government, schiefly in relation to labor legislation, it is believed that the evolution of the actual conditions of labor is only in its beginning.

Other information on Russia given out by the labor office indicates that unemployment is increasing.

Dead Rats, Frogs, Ingredients of Modern "Hooch"

"Devil's broth," prepared by the three witches in Macbeth bears some resemblance to modern moonshine made in the neighboring mountains. The latter concoction, however, contained ingredients not numbered among those which the weird trio threw into the "charmed pot."

Dead rats, frogs and, perhaps, other foreign substances were found in a recently used still by Constable J. A. Thompson and assistants between the Cannon's Creek schoolhouse and Ferndale yesterday afternoon. The officer stated that a run had been made in the still yesterday, and that the dead rodents and amphibians were probably in the last run.

The still, a small copper vessel, was brought to town and destroyed shortly afterwards in front of Magistrate Charles G. Smyth's office. No arrests were made.

34 CAPTURED IN KNOXVILLE RAID

KNOXVILLE, Aug. 20.—Raiding the city for violators of the prohibition law four raiding crews including United States prohibition agents of Louisville, Ky., and Knoxville, and members of the local police yesterday seized about 50 gallons of whiskey and ten 34 persons before United States Commissioner J. Pike Powers of Commitment pending preliminary hearings.

The city-wide operation was directed by L. B. Morley, attached to the office of P. Green Miller, general prohibition agent for Kentucky and Tennessee, located at Louisville. Police who were on duty at the time the raiders were tipped that "the zero hour" had arrived, with men especially appointed, assisted in the clean-up and at the close of the day Morley complimented them highly on the effectiveness of the work.

Combing operations of Morley's men will continue today and through the remainder of the week and it was anticipated by the chief that no less than 75 arrests will be made. Members of the police force were still engaged late in the night seeking several who had escaped the raiders earlier in the day.

Preparations for the raid were made by Morley and members of his staff of operatives including Joe Phillips, E. J. Blankenship, M. L. Rolen, A. J. Howe, John L. Goin and three other agents whose names were not divulged, who have been in the city since July 20 developing a number if places.

Germans Orderly as French Troops Quit

STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 20—Precautions taken by the German authorities against possible incidents during the French evacuation of Offenbourg and Appenweier proved needless, as the populations, not only of the affected towns, but of the whole district showed indifference, with the exception perhaps, of the children.

The forces of occupation, consisting of two squadrons of the Eighth Hussars, with headquarters here, and one company of the 170 Infantry from Kehl were busy packing and cleaning all day yesterday preparatory to joining their respective regiments. By noon today it is expected no visible trace will remain to show that the towns were occupied.

Bishop Defines Dress Worn in Church

Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The length of the sleeves of a woman's dress which is suitable wear for the observance of church services has been laid down by the Bishop of Clermont-Ferrand in a notice which he has asked the priests of his diocese to bring before their flocks.

Wearers of dresses wanting in modesty, the circular states—with the explanation that decency forbids low-cut necks and sleeves that do not reach below the elbow—should be asked to leave the church, and if they present themselves thus attired at the Holy Communion, the priest should pass them by. Their own priest later should give them "a paternal warning" on the subject.

"Philosophy No Excuse" for Murder, Declares Prosecution—Not Finished This Morning.

Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 20—Two of the three high crimes for which the state of Illois provides the death penalty, murder, rape and kidnapping, were committed by Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb in a manner justifying nothing less than death on the gallows, Thomas Marshall, assistant state's attorney, told Judge Caverly today.

The defendants gave no visible penalty."

sign of hearing the words "death

The attorney ridiculed the efforts of the defense to show mitigation of punishment by testimony of mental experts. "Philosophy is no excuse for crime," Marshall declared. He had not finished when court recessed until the afternoon.

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Unqualified demand for the death penalty for Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, co-murderers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, was made of Judge John R. Caverly yesterday when the state, through Thomas Marshall, assistant state's attorney, began final arguments in the long legal battle.

"If this case does not deserve punishment by death, then no case in the history of Illinois has deserved that punishment," said Mr. Marshall.

The arguments were reached after Benjamin Bachrach, backed by his brother, Walter and Clarence S. Darrow, his associates in the defense, had finished pounding at the testimony given yesterday by Dr. William Krohn, fifth alienist and final rebuttal witness for the state. The doctor, a veteran of 18 years of court experience, was buffeted by insinuations that frequently tried his temper, but he answered the attorneys with an elaborate courtesy that verged so closely on the sarcastic as to provoke smiles from those spectators who remembered Monday's hot exchange between the doctor and attorneys.

All attempts by the defense to win from the expert a modification of his conclusion that Leopold and Loeb are mentally sound, failed. Neither would he acknowledge that his opportunities for observing them might have been improved upon. The battle of witnesses had closed an hour's recital of the court's record of Dr. Krohn in which it was brought out that he had acted as an expert for three successive state's attorneys and had testified frequently in civil hearings in which mentality was involved.

Only a 5-minute recess intervened between the closing of testimony and the start of the arguments. Mr. Darrow lost an appeal to the court that the defense testimony in mitigation of punishment and therefore should be allowed to start and finish the forensic effort. A short conference on procedure and seating arrangements followed and then Mr. Marshall started.

AUTHORIZED COMMUNITY ADVERTISING.

A bill is being drafted which will come before the Michigun legislature which will permit community advertising. Heretofore cities and public utilities of a municipl charatter were obliged to make advertising appropriations through some fund other than an advertising fund to allow them to comply with the law regulating cities and towns in public expenditure.

Under this law, resort associations of a public character and other quasi public enterprises will be allowed to advertise on the grounds that the measure is good fo rall and that the community as a whole would benefit from the advertsing. In the instance of a municipal lighting plant, the city would be allowed under this law, to advertise electric fixtures and utilities sold in its retail store.

This bill is another recognition by lawmakers of the power of advertising for community growth, and that "selling a city," or a community by publicity has its legitimate place in modern community life.

MR. DAWES IS NOTIFIED.

One of the largest political rallies held by the republican party for years in the west, was the stage setting last night for the formal notification of Charles G. Dawes, republican nominee for vice-president at Evanston, Illinois.

Mr. Dawes' speech of acceptance was characteristic of the man Brief, it occupied but a little over half an hour of time, concise and terse, the speaker brought out the high lights of republican achievements and republican aims for national welfare, as no other speaker in the campaign has presented them.

The speech was devoid of political flavor. It was rather that of an advisor speaking with a direct knowledge of national and international affairs to an audience of millions of his fellow countrymen who have learned to accept his words as a rule of conduct in good government.

The notification of Mr. Dawes was particularly apt asto time and place. The formal notification, made at Evanston among neighbors and friends of all parties who in the years he has resided in the Chicago suburb have learned to love, respect and honor him, and coming at a time that his efforts in the behalf of international peace and prosperity seems triumphant in the aceptance of the Dawes plan for European adjustment, was especially felicitous.

Mr. Dawes, while not an orator, has a good radio voice. The gods of air and space were with him last night and his voice came through the fathoms of bounidless ether clear and distinct, carrying his message of good sense and good will throughout the nation.

In brief resume the speaker treated the past four years of republican administration as a schoolmaster reviewing with his class in civil government well known and accepted facts in American government. Tax reduction, the repudiation of the League of Nations by the American people and their wisdom in so doing, the red menace in the so-called party of independent political action, the attitude of the United States in its relations to foreign nations and the safe administration of domestic affairs, were all presented in cohesive form with a well-ordered marshalling of facts.

Mr. Dawes' speech was rather a business review than the sketchy, disconnected political arguments that have characterized some of the speeches of acceptance in the campaign.

THE DAVIS ACCEPTANCE.

We confess to a feeling of disappointment at the speech of Mr. John W. Davis accepting the Democratic nomination for the presidency. We had expected him to evince qualities of statesmanship, but, instead, he has shown himself to be a politician, parroting falsehoods conceived in evil minds and uttered with evil intent.

Mr. Davis does not content himself with a dignified statement of Democratic principles and Democratic purposes, but, instead he descends to contemptible personalities, not even omitting to slander the dead. He even seeks to impugn the integrity of one whose memory is enshrined in the hearts of the people, one in whom the people justly had every confidence and who was loved for his many pure and amiable qualities. He seeks to smirch the reputation of former President Harding.

An incident may tend to show in what estimation two men have been held by the people of the country. We were in a moving picture theatre last week when the picture of John W. Davis was thrown upon the screen. There was not a ripple in the calm of the audience. Evidently surprise was felt by the operator or the management, for an attempt was immediately made to emphasize the matter by throwing upon the screen a picture of Mr. Davis between Governor Smith of New York and his campaign manager, Mr. Roosevelt. But the effort was fruitless, for there was no response. The policy of the management was plainly shown by its failure to display the picture of President Coolidge. However, the picture of former President Harding was displayed and the response was instantaneous, though subdued because of the fact that his picture was displayed immediately following one of his funeral procession.

In his acceptance, Mr. Davis made it plain that he is still bent upon having this country become a party to the League of Nations. His declaration on this subject threw consternation into the ranks of the Democratic party. Millions of people in 1920 voted for Mr. Harding, whose memory Mr. Davis flouts, and for other Republican candidates because they did not believe in the League of Nations. The inability of the League to prevent war, or to accomplish anything of any great importance of any character has been amply demonstrated, and it is unlikely that those who left their party for their country's good will now return to the party that still persists in its efforts to make this Government a subsidiary of the League of Nations. The inability of the League to accomplish anything of good, is plain, but its capacity for evil, for creating turmoil and discord, for showing partiality and intolerance, has not yet been displayed principally because the opportunity has not yet arisen. Mr. Davis won no votes by his advocacy of the League of Nations.

In his discussion of the traiff Mr. Davis simply parrots the propaganda which has been put forth by the Democratic organization during the past few months. He has absolutely nothing new to say except to make use of the word 'competitive" as applied to the tariff. The word itself is new, but it stands for the same old idea. It simply means a tariff so low that foreigners can sucessfully compete with domestic producers in the American market and, by underselling them, drive them from their own home market with the products of underpaid foreign labor paid for in depreciated foreign currency. A "competitive" tariff means one of two thinks, at the very best. It means, either that the competition of foreign products shall drive domestic producers out of business and doom American workmen to idleness, or that domestic wages shall be lowered to approximately the level of foreign wages, and the resultant lowering of the American standard of living. So much for Mr. Davis' "competitive" tariff, which is simply a synonym for free-trade.

Mr. Davis says that "an effort to help the farmer by a tariff on his products is the baldest political false pretense." The farmers know, if Mr. Davis does not, that the purpose of a tariff is to prevent foreign products, produced at lower costs from flooding the domestic markets and preventing the sale of domestic products at home. They know that an adequate tariff does that very thing. They know that millions of bushels of Canadian wheat were rushed into our markets before President Coolidge increased the tariff to 12 cents per bushtl, and they know that since that increase the importation of wheat from Canada has ceased. Having ceased it is no longer a factor in the domestic market and the farmers have been able to find a home market for their wheat. No protectionist ever promised that a tariff on wheat or any other commodity would raise the price thereof the the markets of other countries. That has not prevented the free-traders, Mr. Davis along with the rest, from falsely claiming that such a promise was made.

It comes with poor grace for a member of the party of free-trade to try to influence the votes of the farmers in favor of a policy which has always proved disastrous to agriculture. Mr. Davis makes a bid for the farm, but he forgets to say that Democracy always places the products of the farm on the free list and brings quick ruin to the farming interests. That policy not only permits an influx of foreign farm products, but it drives the workingmen of the country to idleness and spoils the farmers' best market, the home market.

Mr. Davis, quite in line with Democratic precedent, makes the following declaration: "We have no hostile design toward any legitimate industry; we purpose no action that would tear down or destroy." That is the identical promise made by Grover Cleveland prior to his second election as president, and we all know what happened. In a few months prosperity was turned into depression. Mines, mills and factories closed. Farm products were placed on the Free List and became a drug in the market. Sheep and wool were the special objects of the Democratic wrath, and soon sheep were of so little value that their carcases were sold for soap grease, while the wool was hardly worth the shearing. The sheep and wool industry has not yet recovered from the damage done by the free-trade law passed during Cleveland's administration which purposed "no action to tear down or destroy." If the farmers want a return of the hard times of the second Cleveland administration, they have only to vote for John W. Davis and a Democratic congress and they will get it good and plenty."

Mr. Davis sees fit to attack President Coolidge, but he will win no votes by that attitude. Of all the candidates for president, Mr. Coolidge stands highest in the minds of the great body of the people. They believe thoroughly in his honesty, in his sincerity of purpose and in his determination to do that which is right and just, and no vindictive attack by any candidate who aspires to occupy the

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

(By Harry B. Hunt)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Now that the nominations are over and the candidates are duly aware of them nominations, Democratic managers have before them as the big task of the campaign the job of finding some method to offset what may be termed the "radio reaction" against the Democratic convention.

For although on the surface the major animosities engendered during the 16 days' battle at New York have been allayed and the professional party politicians have fallen into line behind the "party's choice," there is no dodging the fact that the exhibition of inter-party friction and divergence of views staged at the convention, made an adverse impression on the rank and file of voters that will require all Davis' skill and diplomacy to erase.

No parallel exists for the present situation.

For the recent conventions were the first at which the rank and file of voters, the folks who cast the ballots but do not attend the conventions, ever sat in as listeners.

The great radio audience, numbering millions, did something besides mere "listen in." It formed opinions and drew conclusions.

Having heard and arrived at clearly established view of its own it will be more difficult for the party's campaign spokesmen to paint a convincing picture of harmony and unity and strength.

That this is a handicap more difficult to overcome than the mere charges and arguments of rival party spokesmen is being forced home on the attention of the Democratic managers.

Of course it is a subject that is not spoken about out loud. Matters of deepest concern often are held most secret. But by the same token they are the ones that cause the most worry.

Davis, as the candidate of the New York convention, falls heir, therefore, to the defections from the party which were broadcast, along with the convention bickerings, by the convention radio. Can he, either in person or by radio, by broadcasting his own magnetism and personality, offset the damage to his campaign the radio had accomplished even before his nomination?

If he can accomplish that, he will have overcome what is perhaps the greatest difficulty in his race.

Inquiries quietly made in non-political homes in many sections of the country have developed that the views and opinions gained by the ordinary folks who listened in on the convention are very clear and definitely fixed.

They are not regarded by their holders as based on second-hand information. Every one of these listeners thinks of himself as having been present at the convention in person. If you try to tell one of these that he has the wrong dope his answer will be:

"You can't tell me! I heard the whole thing myself, and I know what I'm talking about!"

Typical of answers received to inquiries sent out by mail to sound the extent of this "radio reaction," is the following from a reply received from a rural section of Indiana:

"——— ———, a lifelong Democrat, who heard the whole convention by radio, is so disgusted with the way they did it, he says he will vote for Coolidge. And he is not the only Democrat from around here who will vote for him."

The radio as a political instrument, therefore, appears to have its handicaps as well as its advantages.

Foiled!

BOND ISSUE ROAD BUILDER IN CALIF.

Citizens of Pacific Coast State Give It Unqualified Endorsement.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 20—Unqualified endorsement of the bond issue method of financing the primary system of state highways, based on their own experience, has just been received from representative citizens of California, in answer to inquiries sent by the Greater Kentucky Committee of the Kentucky Good Roads Association.

It is considered noteworthy that the endorsement is made with the greatest enthusiasm by representatives of leading agricultural interests, such as E. M. Sheehan, president of the California Grape Growers' Exchange, A. C. Hardison, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation and ex-chairman of the Venture County Highway Commission, and James Mills, president of the James Mills Orchards Corporation.

"Yes, I approve of the construction of roads in our state by state bond issue," Mr. Sheehan writes. "I favored it at the time the bonds were voted. The plan has proved a success and California is noted for its good roads."

Mr. Hardison, voicing the attitude of the most substantial farming element in the state, said:

"I believe the original investment for state roads should be made by bond issue. I was in favor of the plan from the time the bond proposal was first made. In my belief no better method of financing has yet been evolved. Maintenance and rebuilding should be borne by the users of the highways. We are attempting to accomplish this by (1st) a gasoline tax; (2nd) a gross receipt tax on vehicles used for hire; and (3rd) a weight tax."

Mr. Mills, a leader in the formation of the highly successful farmers' co-operative growing and marketing bodies in California, after which similar Kentucky farmer organizations are patterned, lays much stress on the "splendid paying investment" of first class roads:

A straight from the shoulder denial charge made by Claude Thomas in a speech before the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs convention at Crab Orchard that "the experience of California shows that the bond issue has succeeded in driving the farmers to desperation through taxes and in crippling production," is made by W. F. Mixon, secretary of the California Highway Commission.

"The building of roads in California by bond issue has been up to this time successful," Mr. Mixon declares; "and the statement (regarding farmers driven to desperation) is not founded on fact. I think that the present condition of the highway system of California demonstrates that the initial work may well be done by bond issue. The system as it now exists is the result of a bond issue aggregating $75,000,000, to gether with California's proportion of federal aid."

PLAN ABOLITION WORLD SLAVERY

Prince Teferi Writes League of Nations Immediate Action Impossible.

GENEVA, Aug. 18 -Impetus to an expert inquiry into world slavery, which began this week at Geneva, was given by an official report received from Abbyssinia, which declares that slave trading has now been practically suppressed throughout the realm. In writing to the League of Nations Prince Teferi - Mekonnen, heir to the throne, expresses his regret, however, that domestic slavery's immediate abolition does not seem possible, but that the government has issued regulations which, it is hoped, will produce the best results.

By the application of these regulations, says the prince, a large number of persons who are now slaves will obtain their liberty and others will be assured of receiving humane treatment. Moreover the making of new slaves will be impossible. Prince Teferi, who is an ardent supporter of the League and wishes to do everything to gain international support and approval through the League, concludes by expressing his conviction that the measures adopted constitute a stage towards the total and final suppression of slavery.

The prince declares he is adopting, "energetic and ruthless methods" against the slave dealers, for there still remain some who dare to violate the law. The pursuit difficult because immense Abyssinia has still far from perfect communications. Police patrols have been organized at the frontiers, and it is hoped to reach an agreement with the states which administer the neighboring countries for taking effective combined action.

SCORE CARDS FOR COUNTRY SCHOOLS

System Places Pupils on Par With Those Attending City Institutions.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 20—Score cards for rural communities the same as school students are graded were put into effect over Kentucky today.

Prof. C. C. Anderson, University of Kentucky, after a conference with McHenry Rhoads, state superintendent of public instruction made the announcement.

Supt Rhoads is chairman of the committee in charge, and Prof. Anderson, secretary. Prof. G. O. Bryant, Eastern Kentucky Teacher's College, is vice-chairman.

"The purpose of the score card is to stimulate rural communities to study themselves objectively, to record the facts that determine the quality of their community life, to discover for themselves what needs to be done to better their conditions and then to do it on their own initiative," Prof. Anderson said.

The score card contains eight major divisions: Religion, Citizenship, Education, Health, and Sanitation, Homes, Farms, Recreation, Business. The card was worked out by the summer school class of the state university in Community Studies and their application was taught by Prof Anderson, who explained:

"Each division of the score card has a large number of topics and sub topics, intended to cover every factor which makes for community welfare. Values are assigned to these topics so that the score of the community can be compared with the standard score of the score card. The total standard score is 1000 points."

Gov. Fields today spoke heartily of the plan. He said it showed far sighted vision and would knit together rural communities to expression of their rating in the Commonwealth.

WIFE DOING GOOD WORK

"I have been laid off with stomach and liver trouble and bloating for many years. No doctors or medicine helped me. On the advice of my druggist, I bought a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I don't want to miss a single dose. It has given me more benefit than all the medicine I have ever taken. I feel I am doing good to recommend it to others." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

Moving Six States Sixty Miles

A big undertaking you'll say—transporting every man, woman and child in the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky—but if all the passengers who rode L. & N. trains during 1923 could be gathered together in one great group—more than thirteen million people, or nearly 12% of the Nation's population—it would require a train of 158,536 coaches with every seat occupied. Such a train would reach from Washington to San Francisco, an airline distance of approximately 2,200 miles.

Every day over 36,000 passengers get on L. & N. trains and travel on an average approximately 60 miles; and there has not been a single passenger fatality in a train accident during the past four years.

This is what L. & N. passenger service alone means to you; and it should give the readers of this newspaper a further idea of the importance of the transportation industry, which as a whole is doing a better job than ever before in the history of America—or of the world.

Shower for Miss Wilmah Hutcheson

Miss Nora Newman and Miss Inez Bryant were hostesses at a shower given Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Newman, for Miss Wilmah Hutcheson, who is to be married on the 28th.

Decorations of a unique design were carried out in the color scheme of pink and white. An alcove was cut off from the room by pink and white streamers, in which the honoree's chair was placed, also dressed in pink and white. Over this hung a great wedding bell, and around it many colored butterflies were flitting.

A huge dome overhung the dining table, on which the gifts were displayed, and a profusion of pink and white flowers and potted plants created an effect of rare loveliness.

Each guest was requited to name the flowers in a "Bride's Old Fashioned Bouqet" by answering correctly with the name of a flower, a certain number of questions, such as "What is a bride's favorite headdress "Bridal Wreath," and what are Bride's favorite flowers, "Orange blossoms," etc.

The presentation of the gifts was also unique, each guest was given one gift (not their own)—and one at a time presented them to the bride-to-be, guessing what the gift was and who was the giver. After all the gifts were presented, they were opened and passed around among the guests, and then placed on the table beneath the dome.

The invited guests were:

Misses Wilmah Hutcheson, Benalta Collingsworth, of Knoxville, Mabel Ingram, of Pineville, Charline Gagle, Wannita Wester, Minnie Wauga Wester, Gladys Burnett, Eleanor Campbell, Winnie Pippin, Cornelia Avant, Virginia Warren, Laura Cooke, Inez Cooke, Mae Walker, Mary Yenger, Alta Campbell, Bentha Hoe, Beulah Bryant, Mrs. B. Elopers Find Cupid's Knots Hard to Untie

An impromptu elopement of six girls and boys has thrown the legal machinery of Missouri and Kansas into a tangle. For the mamas and papas have steamed over the marital life of the triple entente. When plans were laid to run away from Missouri to Olathe, Kas., and be married, there were but four. On the way, however, two more lovers were found and they joined the wedding party. A sleepy justice of the peace at midnight performed the three ceremonies. Now two of the boys would ask a divorce. But Kansas authorities say it will take more than "under age" to sever the knots. So while family lawyers seek a way out, the sextet has agreed to return to school this fall. The newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Quade (left), Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Costello (center) and Mr. and Mrs. D. Barrett Hamilton (right).

United States and its interests."

Asserting that American citizenship will trust its representatives to uphold as ably and fearlessly the honor of the country and the flag in any conflict of peace as it trusts its youth behind the flag in war," Mr Dawes said.

"The Republican platform on foreign relations outlines a policy which, carried out with the common sense, clear vision and courage of Calvin Coolidge, offers the American people a constructive course of honor, safety and progress. It offers the only policy which at this time means the possibility of accomplishment."

Mr. Dawes said that in his speech at Lincoln, Nebraska, August 29, he would discuss "the non-partisan and economic agricultural question."

Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 20.—The campaign of 1924 was declared to be a clash between the Republican, Democratic and Socialist parties by Albert W. Jeffries of Omaha, in his speech of notification to General Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice-presidential nominee.

"Straight thinking Democrats," he said, are deciding it is impossible for them to ride at the same time two horses going in opposite directions."

LaFollette, he asserted, "eloped with the Socialist party."

"These recent happenings and apparent impossibilities are clearing the political atmosphere," he added, with a prediction that voters would "cleave unto that which is good."

In a tribute to President Coolidge Mr Jeffries said, "The people now knows that Calvin Coolidge knows the value of the tax-payers dollar better than they do themselves. Countless thousands of men and women earnestly wish they possessed the courage to say 'No' and thus protect the family pocketbook as the president has protected the treasury of the United States."

Mr. Jeffries outlined General Dawes' career and said:

"It was no wonder General Dawes, that the Republican convention called you again to duty and service of your country. The delegates had faith that you would counsel and help the president with a courageous spirit similar to that which guided the beloved Harding; akin to that of the immortal Roosevelt; like unto that of the martyred Lincoln; equal to that which you have always shown in the execution of your great trusts."

DENNY STARS IN "SPORTING YOUTH"

Film Star of "Leather Pushers" Staged Wreck Without Camera.

With his racing car piled in a ditch and every indication that a terrific accident had occurred, Reginald Denny furnished members of his troupe a scare during the filming of "Sporting Youth," his latest Universal starring feature which has its first local showing next Thursday at the Manring theatre, that equaled any thrill scene in the picture.

Denny and his mechanic, Earl Millen, were driving from Monterey to San Luis Obispo in Reg's racing car, which was being used in the big road race for the picture, when a collision occurred with a truck, resulting in the wrecking of the racer and knocking a little blue paint off the truck.

Both Denny and Millen were injured, although Denny's injuries were slight. It was necessary to take Miller to a hospital at Salina, a little town several miles away.

Others in the Denny company, on their way to San Luis Obispo from Monterey, saw the wrecked car, could find no trace of the drivers and drove furiously to San Luis Obispo from Monterey, more than one hundred miles away.

All day they waited for word from Denny and none came. Production was held up and Mrs. Denny and her ten-year-old daughter, who had ridden in a car with Harry Pollard, the director, were nearly frantic. Finally, about eight o'clock in the evening, Denny appeared in San Luis Obispo, driving the lately wrecked speedster.

"I'd have been here earlier, but couldn't get the car fixed until a couple of hours ago. All ready to shoot tomorrow," said Reg.

The picture deals with an ambitious young athlete who is working as chauffeur for an eas millionaire. Sent abroad fonnia on one occasion, ar in time to participate in the San Luis Obispo race, made sible because he is mistaken fo famous English driver with a Har name.

Laura La Plante, the recent created by Universal, a winso young feminine athlete, plays posite to Denny. She demonstra riding ability of the modern "spo ing youth" calibre.

Keep Your Health

The correct way to furnish a bed room is with twin beds because the best doctors in this country tell us that one person should not sleep with in three feet of another as diseases are spread by the impurities of the breath. Twin beds are more comfortable and add to the looks of the bed room.

Come in and look over our line of beds. They are of the latest style in all different colors, and we can match the rest of the bed room furniture you already have.
